The latter program is sponsored by Head Start and will begin at 7:30 p. m.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The selectmen are in the process of appointing four new members to the Budget Committee. This year, for the first time, they have named two women, Mary Keniston and Frances Clark. The Board felt it was time to involve some of the women in the budget making process. We expect they will be a real assist especially in the decisions relative to the social and humanities services.

Local assessors plan to meet with representatives of the Bureau of Taxation in the near future concerning the possible revaluation program as authorized at the regular Town Meeting. They need assurance from the Bureau that any program instituted at this time will conform to the new tax law which will be effective in 1977.

The Town will be offering Food Stamps in May or June instead of Donated Commodities. The stamps will be issued at the Town Office. All certifications will be made through the State of Maine Dept. of Health and Welfare. Recipients of Donated Commodities will automatically be reconsidered for certification. New families will be furnished forms for application.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY NOTES RECENT DONATIONS

Recent donations to the Moses Mason House are an antique quilting frame from Mrs. Mary Carroll, a saddle bag from Mrs. Marjorie Cummings of Hanover, and a mirror from Mrs. Clare Smith. In a few weeks the Furnishings Committee will start moving donated items into the House and the Museum, so now is the time to search your house once again for some piece of antiquity representing Bethel's early history which you may have overlooked or which you did not realize might be an appropriate addition to the Museum or to the House itself. Any item accepted by the Committee immediately moves into the category of a "museum piece", no matter how humble its origin. Do see what you can find to contribute and if in doubt as to its authenticity or acceptability, contact Mrs. Floribel Haines (824-2362) or Mrs. Rolly Chapman (824-2442).

The April meeting of the Bethel Historical Society will be held on Thursday, April 4, at 7:30 p. m. in the Moses Mason Meeting Room. The program will deal with the history and development of the mining areas around Bethel. The guest speaker will be Jane Perham Stevens, daughter of the late Stanley Perham. GREENWOOD CITY— Mrs. Collette Morgan, Correspondent —

This is the day when the sunrise should be almost east again and the sunset directly west. Spring! March 21. But outside our winter is beginning; so it looks. Maybe it's the price we pay for a beautiful January and February. However it is chickadee weather. As I sit here by the window gloomily watching the snow coming down the chickadees bound in and out of the feeders like wind tossed leaves. Before I can focus my eyes one is off to a winter-bare branch. There he holds his tiny feet and hammers away with his small dark bill. He eats his weight in food on days like this to keep his body fires burning. Over and over he views the array of seeds, snatches a plump looking one and again he is off. In doing this snatch-n-run routine two seldom enter the feeder at the same time, although as many as five may be on it. One just steps aside and waits its turn as if trained in dining etiquette. I enjoy his antics and if ever a bird has personality; this one sparkles with it. The red polls, nutatches, and woodpeckers get their share, too, but the chickadees outshine them all.

March 22 and after weeks of walking the woods, I again took out my snowshoes and went to the hemlock groves down past the ledges. A few night creatures had been ahead of me: the mouse, the squirrel, and the rabbit, but no footsteps of Spring even though I went down the valley to meet it.

For just a brief while today I slide away from duty and left in-door tasks undone, to bathe my eyes in beauty.

It wasn't the best snowshoeing for the snow was damp and heavy and so my shoes became heavy, too.

Entering the grove all was white and tranquil, again wearing new, pure robes of winter. The trees seemed gaunt and starkly bare. There were no birds to disturb the wintry air.

The wind passing through kept the branches ever in tune; singing their wind music high over head. I stood for some time to rest. My eyes roved over the hills and I saw light running in ripples from ridge to ridge as the hemlocks were stirred by the waves of air. Sometimes the waves of light would break up suddenly, yet, again chase one another in regular order or disappear as do the sea-waves.

I walked quietly along to the ledges then by another route, started toward home.

As I came down our spring road, the mountains gleamed white. Under the humps the snagged line of the forest was blue-black. The sky above the glitter of snow was new blue. One puff of cloud white as whipped cream, had lounged high in that washed glitter of blue, while ahead, now was home.

A few moments after putting my snowshoes away a soft ragged cloud moved in from the southwest, and suddenly the hills were veiled in snow flurries. It was swept in by the loud breath of wind with seeming intention of being in a hurry, and then was gone, vanished as suddenly as it had come. I could hear Spring laughing in the willow bush with sunshine in her hair. She is coming!

WHY YOU'RE YOU?

Peter Bean is shown assembling his simulated insects in the study of inheritance or how characteristics are passed on from parents to offspring.

In this activity at Telstar Regional High School students begin with two insect parents carrying genetic information for 8 characteristics. A simulated mating is performed and the 4 possible combinations of offspring are assembled (other picture). The results are then applied to discussions of human inheritance in the 9 week science course entitled "Why You're You."

Letters to the Editor

March 22, 1974

Dear Editor,

In response to Rev. Linwood Hanson's letter, I would like to comment on his opening statement — quote "Many parents in S. A. D. #44 believe in divine creation and that is why we object to books that present evolution as a fact."

I wonder if "many ministers" believe they will be unemployed if this fact is proven. Why else all the panic over the evolution theory.

I am a parent of S. A. D. #44 and I want my children to have access to all theories and facts of learning including the Bible too. But I cannot understand the reasoning and fear of Rev. Hanson on this subject.

Seems to me an intelligent, open minded minister will be needed even more if this Evolution Theory catches on.

Thank you Board of Directors and editor for intelligent—open minded treatment of the subject.

(Mrs.) Jean H. Grover

March 27, 1974

To the Editor:

In regard to the retention of "The Naked Ape" on the reading list of the anthropology course at Telstar, you are quite right in asserting that the issue is one of censorship. The book is clearly a serious scholarly work, and since it is an acknowledged authority in the field of anthropology, any teacher who failed to include it in a reading list for an anthropology course would be doing his students a disservice.

There really isn't any theological problem here, either. The silly debate over whether the Bible or the theory of natural selection is correct should have ended decades ago. All mainline Christian churches accept the fact that science and religion never contradict one another since they operate on different levels. Most Christians today find no problem in accepting the idea that man has indeed developed from less specialized forms of life.

The main issue is censorship. Some people apparently enjoy trying to control the freedom of choice among others. But this is never permissible. At its best censorship is ludicrously immature. At its worst it is unpatriotic and unchristian. It is unpatriotic because a free flow of ideas and information is indispensable to a democracy. To control this flow in any way is to invite dictatorship—a terrible thought for any American. It is unchristian because the true Christian person is able to read, witness, or experience anything in life without being harmed. Because of insight and ma-so let's try to avoid censorship. Nobody is ever going to tell me what I can or cannot read.

THE NAKED TRUTH

by Wall Cherry

All fathers, I suppose, admonish offspring never to discuss politics or religion, lest they lose friends or get into all sorts of trouble. Every one talks politics today. Religion is left to the clerics, until they overstep their bounds and try to interfere on religious principles with processes outside their milieu. Whether or not students have a right to read about and study human sexuality and the human reproductive process may be matters for the churches to decide, only when the proposed materials are set forth inaccurately, or in inordinately inciting terms. Even under those circumstances, church dogma should be only one factor in judging the propriety of such offerings.

It has been established, with room for no further argument, that freedom of religion in the United States also means freedom from religion. Atheists, agnostics and serious philosophers are entitled to the protection of the Constitution; not to mention possible representatives of four-fifths of the world's population who adhere to persuasions other than Christian, Hebrew or Mohammedan.

Such religious ardor as espoused by people who object to "The Naked Ape", because of departure from Scripture as they see it, caused the burning of Jeanne d'Arc, The Children's Crusade, The Salem Witch Trials, and The Spanish Inquisition, to name but a few. Object to "The Naked Ape", if you must, on the grounds that it is too adult for children, but not on the grounds that it goes contrary to the story of the creation of man as related in Genesis.

I have read "The Naked Ape" but once, and learned some empirically sound facts about human sexuality and reproduction. I have read Genesis 100 times and heard it 100 more, and all I read and heard was a fable fraught with incongruities and self-contradictions.

Genesis was none the less valid as a starting point to explain to illiterate Jews of thousands of years ago, how man appeared on the planet. It has proved a useful myth to cover, in a few words, what has taken 200 years to disprove.

Beginning with Darwin, who was theoretically correct, but factually wrong, the quest for the true origin of man goes on. This quest has uncovered, literally, irrefutable proof that man was not suddenly placed in his present form on earth. Grimaldi, Neanderthal and Feking man, and, more recently, the discoveries of the Doctors Leakey, have proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, that man evolved slowly, perhaps over a period of a million years, to the humans we are today. Exactly when that occurred is not known, but it is certain that it happened longer ago than the 6,215 years accounted for in Genesis and Matthew.

All the same, it is not incorrect or improper, for convenience sake, from the pulpit, to allude to Adam and Eve, because there surely must, at one juncture, in the evolution of man, have been an "Adam & Eve". It is stretching the truth to try to place the time of their emergence as the first of homo sapiens. But let the allusion be what it was, i. e., the beginning of a chronicle which contains some ever-valid rules of conduct for human beings. Let it be the background for the emergence

Allowances Help Child

Allowances help introduce children to the world of living on a fixed income. But an allowance given before age five will not have much training value.

When you think your child can begin to assume the responsibility for a little money, that's when you, the parents and the child need to plan the allowance together.

First, you must decide what the allowance will be for. Does it cover birthday presents and presents for family members? Is it to be used to pay for school supplies or lunches?

Then, get a fair estimate of how much money this will take by having the child keep track of the money spent on these items for a few weeks. When the expenses are totaled, add a little more for the child to spend freely.

A youngster won't get any practice spending money and using judgement if every cent is planned in advance. The amount of the allowance needs to undergo changes as the child grows older. And sometimes, even with good management on the part of the child, emergencies will arise.

Let the child know you are willing to discuss problems. Weigh the merits of each case when deciding if the child needs extra money or not. To be successful, an allowance must be regular and in line with a child's activities and abilities.

Urban Forests

Twenty species of orchids bloom in New Jersey's Pine Barrens, 650,000 acres of forest in the heart of the eastern megalopolis.

Future Communications

Light communications systems under development have the potential for carrying 400,000 telephone calls simultaneously through 100 glass fibers in a cable the size of a pencil.

of the greatest ethical philosophy the world has ever known.

If the majority of affected people object to the studies of biology, horticulture, and anthropology, because they tend to prove that living organisms change their forms, then vote them out of curricula everywhere. Short of this, let the truths of these sciences be known in their entirety. Students do not need to know fictions. They need to know truths. Truths about the way animals—including the highest of primates—adapt one another in a sensual truth.

As young people in a modern society, students need to know more about these matters. Surely, if they are to vote and soon have all adult privileges, they should be told of good and evil in a factual way. In the days of Moses and Joshua, youths of 13 were told, at the campfires, of the evils of human sexuality, and little of its beauty, and unbearable guilt was born. Our youngsters should learn the facts about these matters scientifically, by daylight, and not through fear.

I further certify that the result of the vote at such Meeting was declared by the Municipal Officers of the Town of Andover and was as follows:

SEAMES RECEIVES
"GOOD CITIZENSHIP AWARD" AT
JACKSON-SILVER POST MEETING

Sylvia Dunham, president of Jackson-Silver Unit No. 63, American Legion Auxiliary, presented a Good Citizenship Award to Stephen Seames at the Legion's 55th Birthday Party in Locke Mills, March 21.

Stephen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Seames, and is a junior at Gould Academy. He holds offices in Franklin Grange in Bryant Pond and in Pomona Grange. He is also a member of the church choir in Locke Mills, a very qualified recipient.

A second presentation was the president giving Commander Richard Melville the annual check from the Auxiliary of $330 to help the Post in its many worthwhile projects.

The lovely decorated birthday cake was made by Joyce Swan. Thank you, Joyce.

Only 25 made it through the worst snow storm of the year.

For the program, Stephen Seames sang several old war-time songs, accompanied by Beverly Melville at the piano.

Alanson Cummings was introduced and he reminisced briefly. He has been a member 55 years.

Past State President Fannie Cummings was honored with a seat at the head table.

Past County Commander Leland Dunham was the substitute speaker, filling in for the VIPs unable to attend.

Guests were Oxford County Adjutant Caroline Brooks and Past County President Adeline Dexter of Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Seames; Miss Susan Seames, and Roy Jordan.

Separate business meetings were conducted. Secretary Cathryn Lovejoy reported that seven members attended the Oxford County meeting in West Paris, and that the Auxiliary went in a body to S. Bertha Kimball's funeral. Seven ladies and four Legionnaires paid their last respects to a long-time member.

Nominating Committee appointed was Fannie Cummings, Grace Smith and Joyce Hathaway.

The Legionnaires made plans for the burning of the mortgage to take place April 18, and reminded folks that their next dance will be March 30, Lovejoy's Orchestra.

At the close, a short memorial service was conducted for Bertha Kimball by President Sylvia Dunham. Ellen Lovejoy draped the charter and Chaplain Fannie Cummings gave the closing prayer.

CASCO'S NEW
4-YEAR GUARANTEE

7.51% 7.25%

ANNUAL YIELD SIMPLE ANNUAL INTEREST

Yes, now your long-term savings can yield over 7 1/2% at Casco — 7.51% to be exact. With a four-year deposit of $1,000 or more in one of Casco's new 4-year guaranteed Savings Certificates you receive 7.25% simple annual interest. And in just one year Casco's daily compounding increases your actual yield to 7.51%.

Attractive as this new higher rate may be, it may not make sense for you to keep all your savings in a new 4-year guaranteed certificate because regulations impose a substantial penalty for early withdrawal. Federal law requires that you forfeit a portion of the interest on the withdrawn and that the interest on this amount be reduced to the passbook rate.

This is why Casco's 2-in-1 savings idea makes so much sense. In one savings booklet you keep the record of both short-term and long-term savings. On the short-term side you enjoy in one-day-out-the-next flexibility and interest at a full 5%. On the long-term side you choose the term you want — 1, 2, 3 or 4 years.

Yes, the new ideas in savings come from Casco.

We're always thinking...

GILEAD

Mrs. Clifford O. Cole, Cor. — Spring has come to Gilead. Some of the spring birds have come to join the winter birds at the feeder of Mary Cole. The blue jays, red breasted nuthatch and the chickadees have been a familiar sight all winter along with an occasional visit from a Canada Jay.

The first birds to announce the arrival of spring were the starlings. The birds that followed are Red-wing blackbirds, chirping sparrows, Redpolls, Juncos, and purple finches.

I cannot forget to mention the part of the crow. He has spied on the bluejays off and on to see where they hide their food. So spring is here, but with the snow on the ground and more on the way it looks as though winter is here again.

A flock of robins made a brief visit Sunday.

The Yankee Trader has a different car—a Ford Torino.

It has been found that a bobcat has a den where it can overlook just about every house in the valley.

I tried making a pizza one evening and Earl said it was like eating a loaf of bread with ketchup in it.

"As good as you are,
As bad as I am,
I'm as good as you are,
As bad as I am."

VIKING VILLAGE Sunday River

Mike Lynch is vacationing at his chalet until the first of April. Although he expected to spend this time on his lawn, with his usual Irish luck and Yankee insight, he picked the best possible weeks for skiing. He was seen striding down the slopes with Jeff Hutchins and Roland Coombs, too fast to have their picture taken.

Ted Stackhouse stayed close to the fire with a touch of the 24-hour gripe that seems to be prevalent this month. Nancy Whittier was a little under the weather and didn't come up this week end. Walter had Lincoln Adams of Cumberland visiting.

All the Cummings got in some ski time on Saturday, including the youngest resident of the village, 18-month-old Michael, who will praise Junior Masters just as soon as he can talk. Helen tried and enjoyed the new short skis.

Art Westcott was out in the mist on Sunday wearing bright yellow foul weather gear, enjoying some of the best riding the area has had this winter. Plastic bags were provided by the Skiway to help keep skiers dry on the lift.

Ann Demetriou said she had had a "harrowing experience" on the Lazy River trail: Walter Whittier told her she probably should have been blowing...

The Fullers made root beer a week ago and one of the bottles exploded during dinner Sunday. Big bang! Fortunately, nobody was near the storage area, and the bottles will be transferred to a cooler place this coming week end.

The Demetriou and the Fullers called on the Romeo Bakers last Sunday afternoon, and had a tour of their lovely colonial home.

Sam and Bart Bailey left the mountain early in order to attend the 50th birthday party of Florence's mother in Massachusetts. Bart had signed on for ski patrolling at 9:00 in the morning, bright and early for a change.

Walter and Emille Cherry challenged the neighborhood bridge and ping-pong experts Saturday night. Because there was no consistency of partnership, the bridge scores were as conclusive. However, Ray Stevens remains the King Koog of Ping Pong for the time being.

The brooks were considerably lower and quieter than the previous week end. Steve Wight was up snowplowing for perhaps the fourth time all winter, but the signs of spring are prevalent. Chairs are appearing on decks for sunning, blue jays and crows are competing, and Tucker-mary is under scrutiny across the valley by the racy youth. Conversation is less about stem turns and boot manufacturers than canoes and garden plans. Some villagers have picked up their new equipment on sale, and are looking forward to using it next year.

Edwin Brown was a Saturday visitor of his daughter, Mrs. Barry Crommett, Jay.
